

A COMMUNITY ENERGY ART SPACE

LIGHT IS HISTORY

November 2012

Light is History is a community based energy art space. It is an initiative to engage citizens with issues of community well being and energy consumption in daily living through art and research. It has received support from Aalto Media Factory and is being carried out under the Pixelversity initiative by researchers and students from Aalto University, School of Art, Design and Architecture. The project aims for creating a community art installation using domestic electrical artifacts from the participants' homes to be housed within custom made bright light therapy lamps. This project is planned during the autumnal month of November 2012, providing collective well being in the public space in the Kallo neighborhood in Helsinki, Finland.
